CAPITAL CITY LEAGUE.

Ten more games will wind up the league for this year.

Carr's home run over the right field fence was the first one this season, and there were two men on bases when he lined it over.

Hook has been playing third base for the National Athletic Club during the absence of Fitzpatrick in New York.

Al Ogle's finger, which was badly ripped, is mending in good shape,

Norfolk seems to be the haven for all of the ball teams in Washington. Uselton is perhaps the most erration twirler in the league, and is at his best when the bases are filled, with no one out. He fields his position in style, hav-ing eight assists, most of which were in nipping men at the home pan. Cranston got back behind the pad in the exhibition game played between Car-roll and a scrub nine, and showed how in the old days he was wont to hold down Dr. Harry White, of the Chicago Americans.

Kerr certainly was hammered by St. Stephen's Institute, as if to even up for the 6 to 1 game he pitched against it. His finger is in very bad condition.

The National Athletic Club played another tie game, not with Carroll this time, however, but Aloysius, and the North Capitol bunch should have won.

A few of the league games will be transferred to the Mt. Pleasant grounds of the Church league, if present plans do not miscarry.

When the word was given all crews got the water together. The Argonauts immediately took a slight lead, with three crews bunched, and the Potomacs having trouble in getting under way properly. There was much unnecessary splashing, and before a quarter of a mile had been rowed it was seen that the Washingtonians were doomed to defeat.

All fie crews were traveling along at a fast clip, with the Canadians rowing the highest stroke, in an effort to maintain their lead of half a length.

Conway has fallen down in his batting somewhat, and his team feels the failing keenly.

Myers ought to get over his grouchy tactics when his pitcher is trying to do his best. Runs result if the battery is not working in harmony.

Two crews composed of the crack scullers of New York and Philadelphia competed in the octopede race. For half a mile the two crews stood side by side, but No. 6 in the Quaker boat suddenly lost control of his oar, and before he could recover it his crew had lost nearly half a length. This handicap the Philadelphians could not overeme, and they were beaten out by a bare thirty feet.
